

Save the Date! May 17-19, 2019

Tradition and Freedom: Secular Humanistic Judaism and Jewish Culture

How can I be true to myself AND celebrate my Jewish tradition? Our lifestyles and beliefs are very different from our ancestors, yet we find comfort and inspiration from a shared and evolving tradition. How can we best choose from our cultural inheritance?

The Jewish Secular Community of Asheville (JSCA) invites the Western North Carolina community to join us in a weekend learning experience focused on various aspects of secular humanistic Judaism. This program will interest, excite and educate anyone – Jewish or not – who is looking to learn more and engage in lively discussion about Judaism and the secular humanist movement.

Sessions will be led by:

Rabbi Adam Chalom, Ph. D.

Dean – North America, International Institute for Secular Humanistic Judaism

Rabbi, Kol Hadash Humanistic Congregation in suburban Chicago, Illinois

For more information or to receive registration information when it becomes available, please contact Doris Potash, Jewish Secular Community of Asheville: dorispotash@charter.net.